DETAILED ACTION

DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1, 4, 7, 8 and 14-19 have been under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Pope, 2610879 in view of Jhumra, 6287064. Pope discloses a u-nut (has a u-nut shape in cross-section, 11, figure 2) with a portion of the nut made from a plastic including a flex area (18) made from paper. Pope also discloses the other limitations of the claimed invention as shown in the annotated figure.

Pope's device is also capable of performing all the functional recitations stated in the claims. Pope fails to disclose the flex area and the first and second substrate made from a polymer as required by the claims.

Jhumra discloses a u-shaped nut including a flex area and a first and second substrate made from a nylon polymer material (col. 3, lines 65-end and col. 4, lines 1-6).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art to make Pope's device from a nylon material in order to improve the strength and corrosion resistance of the nut.

4. Regarding claims 7 and 17, Pope discloses angled surfaces located at the end of the stems in figure 2. Pope fails to disclose an angled surface being at an angle of 45 degrees with respect to the stem. Pope's angled surface is curved to facilitate insertion of the retainer into the acceptor. Applicant's 45 degree angled surface serves the same purpose. Both surfaces facilitate the insertion of the retainer into the acceptor equally as well as the other. Therefore, it would have been an obvious design choice to use an angled surface having a 45-degree angle in Pope's device.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 3, 5 and 6, have been objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

6. Claims 2, 9-13 and 20 have been allowed.
